Diamond Wire Technology Appoints New Saw Division Manufacturing Manager

Colorado Springs, CO – August 18, 2008 – Diamond Wire Technology (DWT), the oldest manufacturer of diamond wire and diamond wire saws, has appointed Tony Costa as its Saw Division Manufacturing Manager.

Costa's background includes Project Management and Assembly Line Management combined with a strong background in all areas of technology manufacturing. Costa also brings process management expertise and ISO qualifications to DWT as the company continues to experience rapid expansion and growth. Prior to joining DWT, Costa has served as Production Supervisor, Quality Assurance Engineer, Upgrade Program Manager, Manufacturing Supervisor and Marketing Project Assistant for several other local and international firms. He has been involved with volume manufacturing start-ups in Dundalk, Ireland and Penan, Malaysia and will bring a broad range of management expertise to DWT. Costa has an AS degree in business management and a BS degree in Marketing.

Costa is a Colorado Springs native and lives in the area with his wife and 3 children. He enjoys spending time restoring his Victorian-era home in downtown Colorado Springs, as well as building and driving competition vehicles at a variety of regional race tracks.
